Reproduced word for word from the form in T.C.A. 66-11-145(d). One thing on the sheet is not a slice of the statute and it is worth knowing which: the statute draws the TO block as a two column table, prime contractor on the left and owner on the right, and the published code serialises that table into stranded underscore runs. The two captioned address blocks print what those columns say, in the statute's own bracketed words. Nothing else on the sheet was touched. This is not legal advice.
